

For Release:
October 4, 2011

Contact: 785-296-0901
Communications@dol.ks.gov

62nd Annual Industrial Safety and Health Conference held in Topeka Four-day KDOL Conference meeting promotes safety in the workplace

Topeka — The Kansas Department of Labor Division of Industrial Safety and Health today kicked off its 62nd annual Safety and Health Conference at the Capitol Plaza Hotel in Topeka. The four-day conference offers attendees the opportunity to hear several featured speakers and to attend educational workshop sessions. The final two days will be comprised of professional development courses.

"Workplace safety is a top priority for us in Kansas," said Kansas Labor Secretary Karin Brownlee. "Safe and healthy workers help spur on our Kansas businesses and keep our economy growing. We're proud to offer this conference as a tool in keeping our workplaces as safe as possible and our Kansas workers healthy and productive."

"Workplace safety is a top priority for us in Kansas," said Kansas Labor Secretary Karin Brownlee. "Safe and healthy workers help spur on our Kansas businesses and keep our economy growing. We're proud to offer this conference as a tool in keeping our workplaces as safe as possible and our Kansas workers healthy and productive."

"Not only will the workshops be beneficial, but employees will also have the opportunity to network with other companies and peers to learn ideas that enhance their own safety and health programs in the workplace," stated Terri Sanchez, Director of Industrial Safety and Health at the Kansas Department of Labor."

Additional information about this year's Industrial Safety and Health Conference may be found online at <http://www.dol.ks.gov/safety/events.html>

###