Division of Workers Compensation:
Serving Kansas for more than 100 years

Workers Compensation Ombudsman

The Ombudsman Unit was established 1993 during a statutory revision of the Workers Compensation Law. The revision broadened the ombudsmen's duties to, "assist injured employees, persons claiming death benefits, and other individuals obtaining benefits under the Workers Compensation Act." Additional duties were also added to, "investigate complaints and communicate with employers, insurance carriers, health care providers, etc."

The Kansas Legislature authorized the ombudsmen to assist unrepresented claimants in the mediation process. The unit was assigned the task of assisting in the development and the dissemination of informational material that was required to be used by insurance companies and employers.

Today, Workers Compensation employs five full-time ombudsmen who specialize in aiding injured workers, employers and insurance professionals by providing claims information and assisting with problems arising from job related injuries and illnesses.

During a recent interview, members of the unit said their work is rewarding because of the variety involved and the gratification they feel in helping someone during a difficult time in their lives. Members shared there's nothing better than receiving a "thank you" from someone they've worked with who's made it through a difficult situation.

The ombudsmen revealed the keys to their continued success are in their compassion, tenacity and their ability to look beyond the frustration of the injured worker and focus on helping with the issues involved in each person's situation.

Unit members say their payment isn't in their paycheck, it's in the knowledge they're really making a difference in people's lives and staying true to their mission as public servants.

Currently in 2014, the Ombudsman Unit has provided information to 12,684 contacts which include employees, employers, attorneys, insurance carriers and agents, healthcare providers and others on a wide range of topics and issues concerning workers compensation in Kansas.

Ombudsmen can share information on how to post a Workers Compensation notice, provide required information to an injured worker, instruct how to make timely submission of accident reports and appropriate payment of medical services, provide determination election information, explain death benefit requirements, handle dispute resolution, provide assistance for Spanish speaking injured workers and more.

EDI Training held in November

Division staff met with Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) Trading Partners from the Wichita area on Nov. 13 to provide tips and answer questions about the EDI filing process.

Training focused on the partners' most frequently asked questions and provided a forum for networking.

Kansas Workers Compensation mandated the use of the International Association of Industrial Boards and Commissions (IAIABC) EDI Release 3 Standards in April 2013. The mandate requires all carriers, group pools and self insurers to use the EDI to file both First Reports of Injury (FROI) and Second Reports of Injury (SROI).

Derek Van and Robert Soria provide information on EDI

If you are a current trading partner and would like to attend training in the Topeka or Overland Park area, contact Robert.Soria@dol.ks.gov for information and monitor future issues of this publication to view dates and locations.
